Maggi offers a warm and fabulous welcome at her new B&B

It's tasteful, fabulous, with beautiful views and a service which is second to none – welcome to Fferam Noggi Bed and Breakfast which is about to open its doors to guests.

Yes, Maggi Noggi – Anglesey's most glamorous farmer has got a brand new business on the go as she branches out into running a B&B.

And we are all invited to Fferam Noggi (and old Anglesey word for 'farm', according to Maggi) in a new series - Gwely a Brecwast Maggi Noggi.

The series starts on April 8 on S4C and in the first programme, Maggi will be welcoming none other than Aloma (from the well-known singing duo Tony and Aloma) to Fferam Noggi. Aloma has run a hotel in Blackpool for 40 years and the singer from Anglesey has plenty of top tips for Maggi.

During the programme, Maggi will be getting out and about with a visit to Llangefni where she asks some of the townspeople for some tips on how to run a B&B. She also gets a cleaning lesson from Caren – the owner of cleaning company Tŷ Bach Twt and a visit to Becws in Beaumaris to source some sweet treats for her guests.

We have managed to catch up with Maggi and find out more about the new series:

Hi Maggi – how would you describe your series - Gwely a Brecwast Maggi Noggi?

Well, I had to do something after inheriting the big house next door when my aunty Arianrhod died last year. And what better than to open a B&B? An excuse to guzzle cakes, chat and gossip with all sorts of interesting people. Everybody wants to come over and stay here!

But what about the farm, Maggi? Are you still going to farm or have you changed career to become a B&B owner?

No, I have stopped farming – at last! There are cows and hens everywhere in Wales, aren't there? And I like a little change to add a bit of variety to life. In a way I am still farming as I have come across a very unusual animal – but you will have to watch the programme to find out what it is.

And of course, with the B&B being so very popular, I am quite busy, so I have had to get some staff to help me. And, oh, they are good! Gladys, Steffan, Mari and Christine will be helping around the house and you will get to know them over the new series. Think of the Kardashians mixed with the Krankies, C'mon Midfield, Dechra Canu, Dechra' Canmol – that is the feel of the B&B. Warm with a smattering of fabulous.

Do you have any special guests at Fferam Noggi B&B?

Oh yes indeed! Aloma popped in after having a puncture by Llanfair Mathafarn Eithaf church. Well, by luck, she knew that I lived nearby. Oh, she was absolutely lovely, and we had a lot of fun and she was kind enough to give me some tips on running a B&B.

Owain Tudur Jones has been over to stay, Cefin Roberts, Heledd Cynwal and of course the Queen Bee - Anji (Angharad) Mair. That Kate Middleton has popped over too – I can't get rid of her, she's like a rash!

Maggi, you love getting out and about. Obviously, you are very busy with your new enterprise – do you get the chance to get out and meet your fans in the new series?

Oh, yes, I do. I love any excuse to get out and meet the people of Anglesey – there is no one nicer – they are the salt of the earth! I get to meet so many interesting people and I have had some wonderful adventures while filming this new show. After you watch it, you will definitely want to come over to Fferam Noggi Bed & Breakfast!
